

Thank you for your interest in the TESOL Workshop sponsored by the Educational Linguistics (ELX) division of the Penn Graduate School of Education. The workshop provides an overview of practice and theory related to English language education. It offers practical experience as well as general background knowledge in the field. More specifically, the workshop will cover the following topics:

- Teaching Sounds and Structures of English
- Theories and Practice for Second Language Learning
- TESOL Teaching Methods and Approaches
- Developing Materials for ESL/EFL
- Planning Lessons
- Language Assessment
- Perspectives on the TESOL Profession
- Current Topics in Educational Linguistics

In addressing these topics, we will complement lectured material with teaching demonstrations, facilitated discussions and group work. Through small, practical, hands-on sessions you will learn essential skills for teaching English in US and international contexts. Our objective is to introduce you to the challenging yet rewarding field of English language teaching. No prior experience in teaching TESOL is necessary. This workshop is for anyone who has either taught in fields other than TESOL or NOT taught anywhere before. All that is required is a healthy interest in learning something new and in expanding your professional horizons.

We are currently offering registration as follows:

Requirements

Before the Workshop

1. Read assigned articles on Coursesites.com (Invitation to be sent after the registration) or in the course bulk pack (available at Campus Copy Center, 3907 Walnut Street)

During the Workshop

2. Attend 15 hours of workshop sessions (including 2.5 hours online, as well as one hour lunch breaks);
3. Demonstrate one original activity on Day 3 (Individual preparation after the workshop sessions on Day 2)

Following the Workshop

4. Submit an audio/written reflection about your demo lesson (within 1 week)
5. Complete a one-hour classroom observation and submit one reflective journal assignment; (within 2 months)
6. Develop and submit one full lesson plan, teach/tutor ESL student(s) according to the lesson plan, and submit one reflective journal assignment

Certificates are awarded to those participants who complete all the requirements. The certificate states that you attended the workshop and fulfilled its requirements. Our goal is to prepare prospective professionals with an understanding of basic theories and practical skills for teaching English as a second language. The training will give you a head start if you plan to work as ESL teacher at community centers, schools, or even teach English overseas. It is not the equivalent of state teacher certification, the CELTA, or a master's degree in a graduate TESOL program.
